Introduction

Dear Fellow New Yorker,

As a woman and working-mother, I recognize that America's economic recovery will, in part, rest on our ability to unlock the economic potential of women and minority entrepreneurs. If we can promote the talent of women and minority business leaders and foster the success of a new generation of entrepreneurs, then America's economy will be stronger than ever.

Today, there are nearly 20 million women and minority-owned businesses in the United States. During these difficult economic times, the costs of doing business can sometimes become a tremendous burden for our entrepreneurs and small business owners, particularly for women and minority owners that continue to face unfair disadvantages. To help with these costs, agencies throughout the federal and New York State governments are utilizing programs to offer loans, grants, tax incentives and other types of assistance to startup, growing, and established women and minority-owned business to allow for success and expansion of their enterprises.

Finding the resources that meet your needs in this complex web of agencies can be a difficult task. For this reason, I have created this guidebook to serve as a starting point in providing information about what resources are available for women and minority-owned small businesses. Its contents will be updated periodically as more details become available.

My Senate website (www.gillibrand.senate.gov) is continually updated with critical information about various funding opportunities that are available to you, how to access them, and where to apply.

As you move forward with any grant opportunities, please contact Jon Cardinal, my Grants Director, for letters of support, when applicable. You can reach him in my Washington, D.C. Office at Grants@Gillibrand.Senate.gov, or (202)-224-4451.

Sincerely,

Kirsten E. Gillibrand

The National Women's Business Council

The National Women's Business Council (NWBC) was established as part of the Women's Ownership Act of 1988 (also known as House Resolution 5050) as an advisory body of women business owners. NWBC was asked to identify the barriers to success for women-owned businesses and report annually to the President and Congress on its findings.

The National Women's Business Council's main role is to offer policy recommendations, and therefore does not provide technical training or counseling to women entrepreneurs. However, the Council realizes that training is an essential component to starting and growing a business at every level. The following government and non-profit groups offer training and technical assistance for every aspect of business ownership, from guidance in tax matters, to help bidding for government contracts and advice on providing employee benefits. Many of these organizations maintain local and state chapters to serve small business owners in their communities.

1) Resources

- The NWBC organizes the following resources categories on their website:
 - Counseling and Training
 - Women's Business Centers
 - Small Business Development Centers
 - SCORE – Counselors to America's Small Businesses
 - The Small Business Training Network
 - Local Training Resources
 - Government Resources
